In the Coker v. Austin case, Defending the Republic has just filed leave to amend its complaint challenging the Department of Defense's ("DOD") and Armed Services COVID-19 vaccine mandate ("Military Mandate") to add new claims: (1) that the military is in fact mandating misbranded, expired and even adulterated products; (2) challenging the Food and Drug Administration's ("FDA") unlawful approval of Moderna's Spikevax (in addition to the current challenge to Pfizer-BioNTech Comirnaty); and (3) for the first time, challenges Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna false, unfair and deceptive marketing and advertising of their products and their potential knowledge or participation in the illegal vaccine mandates. FULL CASE INFORMATION CLICK HERE

This new complaint was submitted to the court based on facts that have come to light in the year since the original complaint was filed, including:

- that the military is now forcing service members to take expired and adulterated products that cannot be legally sold or taken by anyone;
- Pfizer's admissions that they never even tested whether Comirnaty can prevent transmission and thus could not stop the spread of COVID-19, which is the foundation for the illegal mandates;
- FDA violations of the law it has been entrusted to enforce to facilitate the manufacturers unfair and deceptive practices;
- the existing consensus among both manufacturers and public health experts that the existing "FDA-approved" vaccines are ineffective against the Omicron variant;
- and the August decision by the U.S. government, which purchased or paid for every single dose of the vaccines, to no longer buy or provide reimbursement for these products because they are obsolete.

DTR also cited to new evidence suggesting that vaccine manufacturers have engaged in deceptive trade practices by misbranding their products, which implicates violations of both federal and Florida state law. These manufacturers have (1) labeled their products as “vaccines” even though they do not prevent infection and transmission; (2) falsely represented their experimental products as being equivalent to FDA-approved vaccines; and (3) deceptively labeled their experimental products as being “FDA-approved.”

Over 8,000 service members have already been kicked out, up to 100,000 more face expulsion due to the mandate, and recruiting has fallen off a cliff. A letter from over 50 members of Congress included with the amended complaint describes the Military Mandates as a self-inflicted disaster for military readiness and recruiting as we face wars on multiple fronts around the world.

The relief requested by DTR in its latest filing is broad and appropriate. It includes requests that the court declare unlawful the DOD COVID-19 vaccine mandate, enjoin the military from requiring service members receive experimental “vaccines,” and overturn the FDA’s approval of Pfizer-BioNTech’s Comirnaty and Moderna’s Spikevax.

DTR will continue to fight for the right of all Americans, especially those who serve our country, to make their own medical decisions and decline mandates to receive jabs of experimental and government-sponsored “vaccines.”
